I also think that WF probably was surprised that the structure of the draft CAFO was so different than the R6 CAFOs--even though they did not have time to review the draft CAFO it's pretty evident in quickly looking over the document. There was not a lot of detail in the compliance order section of the R6 CAFOs -- essentially develop and implement SOPs for each facility re: HW management and then certify and submit copies of the SOPs. There's also the electronic system with the off ramp.
